- Roleplay TableTop Games as educational tools
- “As a teacher, I have seen how LabGDR’s role-play approach helps students connect on a deeper level. It encourages empathy, respect, and positive friendships through meaningful, shared experiences.” (Christina Mariou Head of Languages, at Pascal Private Secondary School, Lemosos, Cyprus)
- Target group: Secondary school students
- Piloting of materials by teachers by all partners

Project Objectives

1. Place greater emphasis on empowering students, recognizing it as essential for both life and personal skill development.
2. Empower teachers in social and emotional learning, the empowerment of students' individual life skills, as well as the ability to carry out TTRPG scenarios.
3. Promote TTRPG scenarios and methodology as upgraded school activities to recognise and support students' discomfort.

HOME PROJECT PARTNERS RESULTS ACTIVITIES

EuLab RPG
EUropean LABORatories of Role-Play Gaming
to promote school social and emotional culture
K4220-SC4 - Cooperation partnerships in school education

Results

RPG Curriculum
The primary outcome is a comprehensive school curriculum to guide schools in integrating Tabletop Role-Playing Games (TRPG) for improved student mental health.

RPG Scenarios
The second package will develop teacher training and resources for implementing Tabletop Role-Playing Games (TRPGs) effectively in the classroom.

RPG Laboratories
The final work package will focus on piloting and evaluating the project's outcomes, in real-world settings, gathering feedback from various stakeholders.
